

The guests from the North

In the winter time exotic guests from the northern Scandinavia and Russia invade my birthplace in Himmerland in Denmark: Geese, thrushes, sparrows.

The most exotic guests announce their arrival with their beautiful song. From above high in the sky they select a safe place where they can rest and forage.

In the open winter green wheat fields the large white birds stand side by side and eat the green, fresh sprouts.

The flock consists of hundreds of white birds. The uttermost birds crane their neck and take care that no one gets too close.
