

The oasis at the harbour

Deny the architects access to the area.

Deny the urban planners and the building authority access to the area.

Deny other local authorities access to the area.

Eliminate all regulations for the area.

The result is incredible: An area with living people, with an attractive environment, with its own character. A place for local people, who have fishing as a hobby and love the friendship and the socializing in this small area.

Probably the sheds with tools for dinghy fishermen at the harbour in the village Hals have no prospects. The forces of law and order and normalisation will in the years intervene and tidy up.

But until then, we can watch the chaos and the free living in this small fishing environment at the harbour in the village Hals.

The harbour of Hals, Vendsyssel, July 2018