

On my way to work

It is an ordinary morning. I lock the front door to my little wooden house here at the top of the mountain on the outskirts of the town Qaqortoq. Every morning I walk down to the local government offices. My office is located down town close to the harbour.

It takes nearly twenty minutes to walk down to my work, but I enjoy the walk. I have a view to the lake Storesøen and the mountains and fiords surrounding the town. However, this view makes me turn back. I have to go home to get my camera. I want to photograph this spectacular scene.

This beautiful morning at the beginning of July the sea fog again has been formed out at the sea. It drifts in from the sea, and it is now a very thick cloud above the cold water of the fiord. The cloud of sea fog gives the landscape a new and exciting perspective. Here on the mountain I walk in the sun. Down inside the sea fog it is cold and dank. The bright cloud of sea fog is in a great contrast to the green landscape and the mountains on the horizon.

The sea fog above the cold water of the fiord, July 2014